Some lucky students are enjoying learning something of old musical skills. Mrs Bamess is sharing her talents and skills during afternoon ukulele lessons with a dedicated group of musicians. She is very happy with their progress and there are always plenty of smiles among the concentration to master the chords. They can be heard singing along to their strumming, having a wonderful time. Good luck to these learners and a big thank you to Mrs Bamess for volunteering your fine skills.